Citation Issues That Could Not Be Corrected

1. Section 2.3: Key Characteristics and Limitations of Ancient Democracies

- Citation 8 appears to be correctly linked to "Public Assemblies in Early Cities" but I could not verify if this source fully supports the claim about assemblies holding ultimate political authority.

2. Section 4.1: The Magna Carta (1215) and the Assertion of Rights

- Citation 9 refers to Britannica's entry on Magna Carta, but I could not verify if it specifically mentions King John's losses in Normandy and Anjou as contributing factors.

3. Section 5.1: Key Enlightenment Thinkers: Locke and Montesquieu

- The original citation 65 (now citation 16) referring to Montesquieu's famous statement could not be fully verified in the referenced source.

4. Section 5.2: Implementation of Separation of Powers

- Original citations 71 (now citation 18) about presidential veto and Supreme Court powers could not be fully verified in the referenced source.
- Original citations 95, 99, and 100 (now citations 19, 20, and 21) required significant reworking as their content could not be fully verified.

5. Section 6: From Limited to Universal Franchise

- Most citations in this section (original citations 108, 109, 113, 136, 137, 140, 146) required significant restructuring as they lacked clear reference entries.

6. Section 7: The Post-World War II Era

- Original citations 151, 165, 169, 170, 175, 186, 190, 202, 233, 250, and 256 lacked clear reference entries and required substantial research to match with appropriate sources.

7. General Issues

- Several citations required renumbering to maintain sequential order.
- Some citations were consolidated where they appeared redundantly.
- Years that were incorrectly formatted as citations (1215, 1642, 1651, 1704, 1755, 1787, 1884) have been corrected to appear as dates rather than citations.
